

401 Bioeducational News

It was another frightfully amazing month at Lighthouse School! Students had the opportunity to save their tokens and purchase some literary gems at the Book Fair, which was held in the school library. Between the 14th and the 18th, we had our annual Bullying Awareness Week. During this time, we focused on ways to be a good friend to others and treat others with Respect, which was also the theme of the month, and decorated our doors to show we stand against bullying. On that Friday, we had a school assembly in the gymnasium, where we watched a video about bullying and where students could share their past experiences with conflict. The week also saw the return of the “Caught you Caring” campaign, where staff could recognize students acting kind, helpful, and empathetic towards others. We’re back and running at full throttle and we can’t wait to see what the upcoming months bring!

402 Bioeducational News

With another full month under our belts, students were very busy and engaged in many school and homeroom based activities. During mid-day electives the room continued, and completed reading The Things They Carried. The students had very deep conversations about war and conflict as well as the impact of the Vietnam war on those serving. There were a few offsite trips for those students eligible to participate such as, a mountain hike up Mt Watatic, and a trip to the Salem Witch Museum. The classroom had a pumpkin painting group activity, decorating pumpkins together. This month’s school theme was respect, and with this being an international month for bully prevention, the themes coincide nicely together. 402 Took part in a caught you caring week long raffle, an anti-bullying rally, and a door decorating contest. We finished up the month with a Book Fair, where students had the opportunity to use their tokens to purchase books or other school supplies. We hope you too enjoyed the month of October and had a Happy Halloween.

403 Bioeducational News

October was a busy month, friendships were being built and the students were busy keeping up with their academics and their vocational skills development. The monthly theme for October was Respect. The students in 403 discussed ways in which to demonstrate and show respect, both in school and in the community focusing on thinking about how others are feeling and how their actions may impact people around them. The students also took part in discussions about bullying, many were open to share their experiences. All the students participated in Anti-Bullying Awareness week, which included a bulletin board contest, a rally in the gym and the 5th annual “Caught you Caring” initiative, which allowed staff to recognize students who they caught caring and demonstrating compassion to others. In Guided Reading class, we finished reading “Lord of the Flies”. The students did a wonderful job participating in discussions about social roles, it was evident that the book had an impact on all, and as a culminating activity we watched the movie. Students also got to participate in the Scholastic Book Fair, where they purchased books and stationary items using the tokens they worked hard to earn. The month closed out with a cluster pumpkin decorating activity. We’re looking forward to November and the beginning of the 2nd quarter.

404 Bioeducational News

Greetings. We have really started rolling with this school year, and things are off to a great start. October was full of great activities both for our homeroom, and the entire school. The theme of the month was respect and this worked perfectly with our Bullying Awareness initiative which lasted all month long, but was accentuated by the school wide Bullying Awareness Week. To prepare for this we had discussions in the homeroom about the effects of bullying and decorated our door with our pledge to, “Stand Up, Stand Strong, and Stand Together Against Bullying”. The week also featured the school wide Caught You Caring campaign in which students received recognition for their selfless actions. The week was capped off with our Anti-Bullying Rally in the gymnasium. We are thrilled to announce that all our students were present and respectful during the rally. Some even elected to take a huge risk in front of their peers and share their stories. Later in the month, some of students took a trip to The Salem Witch Museum, using their hard-earned tokens for a chance to learn more about our region. We prepared for Halloween as an entire cluster by decorating pumpkins together and sharing them with each other. This month was another outstanding month for Homeroom 404, and as we prepare to shift our theme from respect to family we are sure our students will continue to step up.

405 Bioeducational News

It was another amazing month at Lighthouse School! Students had the opportunity to save their tokens and purchase some literary gems at the Book Fair, which was held in the school library. Between the 14th and the 18th, we had our annual Bullying Awareness Week. During this time, we focused on ways to be a good friend to others and treat others with respect, which supported the monthly theme of respect. All homerooms decorated their doors to show we stand against bullying. On Friday of that week, we had a school assembly in the gymnasium, where we watched videos about bullying and gave students the opportunity to share their past experiences with conflict. This month our cluster came together to have a pumpkin decorating afternoon. Each student received their own pumpkin to decorate. It was great to have a little down time to enjoy one another's company. We're back and running at full throttle and we can't wait to see what the upcoming months bring!

406 Bioeducational News

October was a busy month, friendships developed and the students were busy keeping up with their academics. The monthly theme for October was Respect. The students in 406 discussed ways in which to demonstrate respect both in school and in the community, focusing on accepting others for who they are and they were all encouraged to share positive statements about their classmates. The students also partook in discussions about "Bullying", many were open to share their experiences. All the students participated in anti-bullying week, which included a bulletin board contest, a rally in the gym and the 5th annual "Caught you Caring" initiative, which allows staff to recognize students who are caught caring and demonstrating compassion to others. In Guided Reading class, we finished reading Miss Peregrine's Home for Peculiar Children, the students did a wonderful job participating in discussions, it was evident that the book was enjoyed by all, as a culminating activity we watched the movie. Students also attended the book fair, where they purchased books and stationary using the tokens they worked hard to earn!